

Riviera Coed Wins Medal At Museum

Alina Gregory, Marymount High School Palos Verdes senior, captured the coveted first place Gold Medal awarded by the Committee for Advance Science Training at the Los Angeles County Museum last Thursday evening.

Alina was the only girl represented among the finalists, eight of which were classified as scholars, two as senior scholars and Alina the medalist. She was also the only one who was not working under a doctoral research director in the 1962 Summer Biomedical Research Program sponsored by the Museum.

Each of the finalists read papers before the audience of distinguished scientists, guests, and friends. Alina's thesis was entitled "A New Concept of Antibody Production" which was a research project undertaken in her junior year for Marymount's annual Science Fair.

SHE DESIGNED experiments to determine if certain antigens, normally producing an antibody response in animals, could induce production of aggregating substances by plants. Positive reactions made it possible to formulate a theory of antibody production.

Other aspects of the research are still being pursued by Miss Gregory, that is, to study the heredity traits of these results and also to see if the presence of antibodies in the human blood stream prevents grafting of limbs by testing the grafting characteristics in the antibody-producing plants.

THIS NEW HONOR adds to her list of achievements. She was the sixth place winner in the senior biological division at the Los Angeles County Science Fair last April; regional winner in the Future Scientists of America Awards, Western Division; first place winner for the Southern California Branch of American Society of Microbiology, and has been offered research work at Riker Laboratories, Northridge, by Dr. A. Levy.

Alina is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas S. Gregory, 309 Via Linda Vista.

'Winterize' Driving Habit—CHP

The heavy storm which swept large areas of California recently held an important message for motorists.

"It's time to 'winterize' driving habits," said California Highway Patrol Commissioner Bradford M. Crittenden.

"Most drivers have become accustomed to the generally good driving conditions which prevail in summer months. Now, days are shorter and more driving is done when visibility is poor. Rain, fog, wind—and in some areas ice—will further reduce visibility as well as affect road surface conditions.

"The sensible driver accepts these limitations by reducing speeds and increasing following distances. He doesn't allow his vehicle to get into a position where sudden turning or braking movements are necessary. He allows more time for these trips.

And, he makes sure brakes, lights, horn, wipers and other mechanical equipment are in proper working order.

"It may take him a little longer to reach his destination, but he DOES arrive," said the commissioner.

More than a third of all the women in the United States are getting along without husbands, and every one of them would like to get their hands on a man.

There are quite a few of you women, though, who already have a man but don't know just how well off you are.

I defy any one of you now unhappy with the man about your house to sit in front of a full-length mirror for one full hour and not come away shamed and saddened by the knowledge that the downhill side from romance to no romance is all your doing.

Sliding Downhill? Stop it Right Now!

by Count Marco

And don't blame it only on personal appearance. Throw quite a bit of attitude into that mess you made, too.

You American women are so completely spoiled by your men that you adopt a fairytale attitude that the world (meaning men) owes you a living. When I tell you "not so," you snarl and snap that the American male doesn't know how to be romantic, that he isn't as polished as European men.

But then, without thinking, you turn right around and ask in a nasty way, "If European women are so superior, how come they marry the American men when they get the chance?" It's obvious that the European women know a far, far better thing when they see one than you do.

All over the world the American husband is considered a fine "catch," an excellent thing to have around the house as an ornament, a considerate husband and an ideal father.

So obviously, if you have one you should treasure him because you have a great deal of competition, not only from the hungry husband-hunters in this country but from women from all over the world.

If you are one of those wishing you could get out, remember it's only because you're not woman and wife enough to hold that man or make him interested enough in you that he even wants to hang on.

You won him in the beginning against all that competition, so you must have had something special. Dig it up and polish it. It might be even better than ever, with all the rest it has had.

You've got the whole world in your hands; don't drop the ball, honey, because those shattered pieces may well be you, not him.

Y 'Indians' Plan Spook Fete Friday

Several hundred "Indians" will be on a strange war path Friday night at the Torrance YMCA. Y-Indian Guides will "fight" their way through a special spook room in order to gain entrance to the Y's Halloween Party for them.

After encountering spider webs, soggy floors, dead eyeballs, flying bats, and chilly handshakes, the boys and their dads will bob for apples, parade in their costumes, and see the movie "Dumbo" to celebrate the season.

The eerie room will be planned and decorated by members of the Achilles Hi-Y Club, sophomores from South High School.

Pat Nixon Plans Day In Area

Preparations are now being concluded for a complete day of activities for the public to meet Mrs. Richard Nixon Tuesday.

Under the non-partisan sponsorship of women from the beach towns of the South Bay, of San Pedro, and Palos Verdes Peninsula an invitation is extended to all women to attend one or more of the day's activities.

The events for the day begin with a "Chat with Pat" coffee hour in the home of Mrs. Roy Seawright of Hermosa Beach, at 9:30 a.m. and an informal reception at 11:30 a.m. followed by luncheon in the cafeteria of Marymount College, 6717 Palos Verdes Drive South, Palos Verdes Estates. A nominal cost of $2 will be charged for the luncheon.

A tea follows from 1:45 to 4 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Rober Lande, 6437 Via Colinita, San Pedro.

The public is welcome to all events.
